Best Software In Top Ten For Manufacturing & Distribution

Best Software recently announced that it was ranked the tenth largest manufacturing/distribution software provider for 2001 by MSI magazine, the primary publication of record for the manufacturing automation industry. The publication's July 2002 annual "Top 100 Software Vendors" rankings recognized vendors involved in the automation of "plan, source, make, and deliver" business and production processes.

Overall, Best Software ranked above all other mid-market competitors, with only enterprise market vendors filling the top nine slots. Best also ranked fifth- largest among enterprise resource planning (ERP) publishers serving the manufacturing and distribution sectors.

The rankings were determined by a survey conducted by MSI and based upon annual revenue figures derived from software sales during calendar year 2001. The review is widely considered to be the definitive view of the manufacturing/distribution software marketplace.

DiscounTech Offers Help for Non-Profit Organizations

Non-Profit organizations looking to improve their information technology have a new resource. DiscounTech is an online software store (www.discountech.com) started in February 2002, offering computer software at steep discounts off of retail prices, courtesy of donations from the software vendors such as Microsoft and Symantec.

For the moment DiscounTech offers software only, but they are working towards providing similar services for computers and networking equipment, hopefully by the end of the year.

There is also an affiliated website, www.techsoup.org, which provides online forums and information to assist non-profits in putting the technology to work.
